Everyone will have a part in the U. S. Savings Bonds great "Opportunity Drive May 16-June 30. The armed forces are responding to the call for volunteer assistance by offering to fly a number of covered wagons to Independence, Mo., for a big ceremony marking opening of the drive. They will then transport the wagons to various States. The covered wagons typify the difference between the terrible hardships the original 49'ers went through in their search for riches and security and how easy it is for the modern 49'er to build for a secure future. Today you are given the opportunity to invest in U. S. Savings Bonds—the easy way to pile up riches. In ten short years you will receive $100 for every $75 invested.

SWINE DYSENTERY A DEADLY DISEASE

Dysentery in swine is a deadly, treacherous, hard-to-control disease. Yet, by correct sanitation and other precautions, swine producers can do a lot to reduce the heavy losses caused by dysentery.

This contagious swine ailment is thought to be due to a germ much like that causing human cholera, and is now recognized as a specific disease. Infection spreads fast, killing as many as 60 per cent of affected swine in a stricken herd. Hogs may die suddenly, after two or three days' illness, or they may linger on for two weeks or longer. Those that recover are stunted and usually unthrifty, are not immune against later attacks, and may act as "carriers."

One type of control plan may be effective on one farm, while some other type may be required on another farm. The veterinarian's advice should be obtained on the best program, and in setting up an adequate scheme of sanitation. Certain general preventive measures are advisable in all cases.

Great care should be taken, for example, in bringing in pigs from sale barns or public stockyards. Such newcomers should be isolated for at least two weeks.

A typical case of dysentery.

Frequent cleaning and disinfecting of quarters is always advisable. Clean water, good feed, and good methods of feeding, all help to guard against swine dysentery.

Symptoms of dysentery include bloody scouring and a rise in temperature. If suspicious symptoms develop, the ailing pigs should be separated from the healthy ones and examined by a veterinarian at once.

Landlord Spends Cash To Keep Tenants Happy

GREAT NECK, N. Y.—A landlord, Paul P. Zinner, thinks the reason tenants dislike landlords is psychological—so he put up $10,000 as a starter to make his 277 tenants happy.

The 34-year-old Zinner said he doesn't see why people can't get all the advantages of a private home in an apartment house.

He can't see, for instance, why children have to be "caged birds" in a multi-family dwelling. He doesn't want that for the 90 kids on his property.

So, Zinner planned to install a hobby room, a gymnasium and recreation rooms in his new six-building development.

Zinner said he'll install television sets, toys, juke boxes, a free library, a golf driving range, a baseball court, billiard, ping pong, dart and other equipment.

He has arranged for dance lessons by a well known Manhattan studio, music lessons, and daytime baby sitters at reduced rates.

"The $10,000 won't last more than a month. Then I'll have to dig up more," Zinner said, adding: "But I'll have a chance to do what I always wanted to do."

Zinner's tenants and their families—the 750 of them representing 46 different nationalities—have begun their "happier living program"—all on Zinner.

In the day the kids will see a puppet show, clown and juggler and have chocolate milk and cookies. At night the parents will dance to a name band.

Lee Theatre Ball Record

A rainstorm at 7:30 P. M. Tuesday night caused the ball game between Washington and Lee University and Lee Theatre to be called off. It will be impossible for the ball team to return here due to examinations. The Lions Club is seeking opponent for the local team, and a date will be announced as soon as possible. All holders of tickets to last Tuesday night's ball game please keep them and they will be good for the next Lions Club game. They will not be honored at regular Lee Theatre team games.

Yesterday Lee Theatre played the strong Longhurst, N. C. baseball team, there. The Appomattox team played its best game of the year and won, 4 to 0, behind the fine pitching of Ray Leister. This is the second straight shut-out game Leister has twirled. There were nine fielding plays on both sides.

Longhurst will play in Appomattox on Friday night, June 3.

Lee Theatre dropped out of first place in the Skyline League Sunday as the Roanoke Colonial Club upset the locals here 13 to 8.

Amherst will play in Appomattox Saturday night, in a battle for second place in the league.

Cads Invade Britain To Get Free Dentures

LONDON—The house of commons got its teeth into a touchy topic:

Are aliens coming over in waves to get free British dentures?

Sir Waldron Smithers, 63-year-old Conservative, was the first to bare his uppers.

He called the house's attention to a government leaflet which he said offered medical, dental, and nursing care to visitors to Britain under the national health services act.

Sir Waldron wanted to know if this is legal.

"I have all sorts of letters of people coming here and getting spectacles and false teeth and going to Antwerp and selling them," he said.

Sir Waldron added that a French doctor told him many of his patients who could afford the fare came to Britain for free treatment and that French doctors were "having a bad time as a result."

All this, he said bitingly, is "part of the Socialist technique of telling the whole world that the Socialist government of England would give free this and that at a time when we were living on the charity of America."

Arthur Blenkinsop, parliamentary secretary for the minister of health, said Sir Waldron's fears "about an invasion of our shores by people who want false teeth and spectacles are a figment of the imagination."

Modern Man Declared Now Uglier Than Ever

GRAHAMSTOWN, — "Men have never been so ugly as they are today," says Prof. T. J. Rousseau of Grahamstown, who advocates communal exercises on the beaches and folk dancing to "restore the physique of the South African male."

The professor has campaigned against obesity for 15 years, describing the average male over 40 as "a comic, pot-bellied creature and a perambulating eyesore."

Women's figures have improved, he thinks.

Emotional Upsets May Cause Mishaps Suffered by Women

LONDON—If mama continually trips over things and falls flat on her face, it may not be that she has two left feet. She may just need a bit of sympathy from the old man.

So says a British scientific survey. The survey was made by the London school of hygiene and tropical medicine for the British government's ministry of works, which is interested in the home accident problem.

Take jealousy, for instance. A jealous woman is a walking booby trap. Psychologists taking part in the survey found. For example: A woman tripped on an electric cord, spilling a teakettle and scalding herself. Psychologists found she was jealous of her husband, that the tea table conversation had been about him having his picture taken with a bevy of beauties.

"What an effective way of changing the subject and attracting attention and sympathy," said the psychologists' report, published in the Lancet, a British medical journal.

Extensive research is needed to show how many home accidents are caused by psychological factors, the report said. Preliminary findings definitely show that women who get little sympathy or understanding from their husbands are more prone to accidents than women who are content.

Valentino Revival Leaves Young Girls Cold as Cod

LONDON—Just as a sort of experiment, the Hampstead theater put on a revival of Rudolph Valentino in "Son of the Sheik."

Long lines of women waited to see it—those who swooned over the heart throb of the early 20's, and their daughters. The former reasserted their undying devotion. But the youngsters had other ideas. Young Felix Barnes, writing in the Daily Mirror, expressed it for them:

"Maybe I don't swoon easy—but he left me colder than a cod-fish on a slab."

Lack of Funds Blocks Making Real Movies

HOLLYWOOD. — Three-dimensional movies, that pry actors away from the scenery and make Lana Turner's curves look curvier, are ready to hit the screen. But their inventor waits that no studio will dish out money for his trick.

Joe Valentine, one of movieland's top cameramen, developed a gadget that brought depth to the screen back in 1940. It's gathering dust. No studio will cough up dough to back the project.

"Two-demensional movies we have now look flat—flat actors against flat scenery," explains Valentine, who's up for an Oscar for photographing "Joan of Arc," a movie that could've used a few more dimensions.

Lighting Now Used

"We use lighting now to try to bring them away from the scenery. Colors of costumes and sets are chosen carefully so actors won't melt into the background.

"In three-dimensional movies the actor stands out with natural roundness. He appears to be right in the theater."

Miss T. looks twice as whittleable, and Humphrey Bogart appears to dash with his gat right into the audience. Trees look rounder and people look like people, which would be a change. And the moviegoer who gets stuck in a side seat won't have to squint at long thin men on a distorted screen, either. Miss Turner looks round, no matter where he sits.

Needed Special Glasses

Years ago one company billed "a three-dimensional movie" in theaters, but that was a fluke. You had to wear special spectacles to see curvier curves.

The new dimension comes from a prism that's inserted behind the camera lens. That costs about $500. The camera then gets two images instead of one. Prisms would have to be installed in every theater-projection machine in the country, costing another $500 per.

"Not half as expensive as sound was to install," snorts the cameraman. "And it would bring change and greater scope to the screen as sound did. Bring customers back to the theaters, too."

High School Chatter....

Hello to Mom and Dad and all the little folks!

We know you are eager to know how May Day turned out! It was an occasion to be remembered - especially by Mildred Wood who was crowned queen by maid of honor, Gwendolyn Binford. Each elementary grade took part in a dance or some form of entertainment for the queen. With the ending of the Maypole dance the queen proceeded from her throne and, followed by her attendants, marched away to music of Traumerei.

Then began the track races and high jumps, in which many of the students participated. After lunch, the baseball team played Cumberland, winning 8 to 2.

Friday night a canteen party was sponsored by the eleventh grade. Decorations were of school colors—blue and white. The queen's throne was white. The highlight of the evening was the Royal Dance, led by the queen and her escort—and attendants and their escorts.

Study hard kiddies — we have only six more days to go to school.

The Music Appreciation and the Latin Classes are presenting a double feature "Songs From the Heart of America" and "Didi, Queen of Carthage" on Wednesday night at eight o'clock in the high school auditorium. We hear they are going to be fine plays.

The driving class members have at last gotten the automobile for their driving lessons! Rah! Rah! We wonder how long the fenders will stay on.

The personality last week was Buddy Ould.

This week we chose a girl. She is an eleventh grader - has brown hair —brown eyes—short—quite a gay teaser—likes skating very much. She and her best friend remind you of each other. She lives in Evergreen. Don't you know her now? If you don't know her first name you should know her last!!

Good-bye - everyone.

A. H. S. Ends Fine Season

The Appomattox High School baseball nine finished its regular season Tuesday, after eight straight victories. Our boys tripped Cumberland 8 to 2 Friday, behind the six-hit pitching of Charlie Mitchell. Billy Bobbitt collected a three-run homer and Buddy Ould pounded out two triples.

James Paulette pitched 5-hit ball and edged New London 2 to 1 on Tuesday. With the score tied at one all in the last inning, Paulette got a nice single to drive in the winning run. David Ferguson had a fine day at the plate, collecting three hits in three trips, and driving in three other A. H. S. tally.

Out of the 17 games played this year, we won 14. Ten of the games were with league opponents.

Battle Speaks Court Day

Senator John S. Battle, a candidate for Governor in the coming Primary, will speak at Appomattox Court House on Wednesday, June 1, 1949 at 11:00 A. M., this being the first day of the June Term of the Circuit Court of Appomattox County.

Senator Battle is a son of Dr. Henry W. Battle, a distinguished Baptist Minister, and the grandson of General Cullen A. Battle of the Confederate Army. He has had a long and distinguished service in the General Assembly of Virginia, being first elected to the House of Delegates in 1929 and then to the State Senate in 1933. For the last four years he has been Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, the most important committee of that body, which passes not only on all appropriations, but also on all tax bills enacted for the purpose of securing revenue to support varied activities of our State Government. He has been a member of the Governor's Advisory Commission on the budget since 1940, prior to this he was Chairman of the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council, which surveys and studies proposed legislation for recommendation to the General Assembly.

Senator Battle is eminently qualified by virtue of his long and outstanding legislative experience and accomplishments as well as by his interest and participation in numerous activities effecting the public welfare of our State to be our next Governor. He will bring to that office, if elected, a wide and thorough knowledge of matters effecting the interest of the State and its people. One of the best evidences of this is the very favorable editorial comment he is receiving in most of the leading papers of the State.
